

Do I need to provide you with a photo ID to legalize documents at a U.S foreign embassy?

Yes and no.

99% of the time U.S foreign embassies and consulates in Washington D.C do not require you to provide them with any sort of photo identification.

But for a few countries like the Lebanese Embassy will require you to submit photocopies of your passport (top and bottom panels) along with your documents.