

What if my documents need to be translated before I get them apostilled or authenticated?

If a document needs to be translated before you get it apostilled at the Texas Secretary of State a Texas notary public would need to witness the translator's signature on the translation. The document being translated would need to be submitted to us along with the properly notarized translation document.

Please note a Texas notary public CANNOT also be the translator (same person); you MUST use two separate people. If you don't adhere to this the Texas Secretary of State's office will reject your foreign translation documents.
