

Will the U.S Department of State accept documents in non-English languages?

No.

The U.S Department of State will only accept documents presented to them in the English language. No other language can be used.

The only exception to this rule is if you also attach a properly translated version copy to your original document that has also been properly notarized by a United State notary public.