

Can I scan or take a photo and email you my documents to review?

Email away and fire when ready Sparky!

We highly recommend that all our customers do this before they mail us or drop off their non-recordable documents at our office.

For recordable documents such as Texas birth certificates, death certificates, marriage licenses, marriage certificates, divorce decrees, and divorce certificates you won't need a review as long as your recordable document is an original or a Texas Vital Statistics (Texas Vital Records) or Texas county-issued raised seal certified copy that was issued after the year 2000.

There is nothing to review because no notarization is required and no special verbiage is needed on those types of legal recordable documents.

For non-recordable documents such as a power of attorney, wills, trusts, lease agreements, K-12, high school or college degrees, diplomas, transcripts, or records, affidavits, contracts, leases, translation and translated documents, consent forms, travel forms, utility bills, bill of sales, agreements, shipping records, immigration and adoption paperwork, single status affidavits, and ID photocopies like drivers licenses, passports, passport cards, permanent resident cards (Green cards), visas, social security, and veterans affairs benefits letters, and social security cards those all require specific Texas notary verbiage added to them, only certain people are allowed to sign them, and they must be notarized properly by a Texas notary public.
