

Does USPS do apostille?

No, the USPS (United States Post Office) does not have the legal authority or capacity to apostille documents. The only government entity that can issue a state or federal apostille and authentication certificate is one of the fifty U.S. secretaries of state and the United States Department of State (USDOS).