

Which shipping carrier do you recommend to mail my documents to and from you?

Hands down, without a doubt, we highly recommend that you use FedEx to mail your documents to us.

Then only use FedEx for the prepaid return shipping label that we require you to mail or email us so we can mail your documents back to you or to wherever and whomever in the world you want.

We have shipped out and received tens of thousands of documents from 6/7 continents on this earth for almost 16 years.

In our vast shipping experience, FedEx is by far the most reliable, professional, and easiest shipping courier to use because all FedEx Offices are corporately owned, they will always give us (anyone) a drop-off receipt when we (anyone) drop off documents in-store at their locations no matter how or where the prepaid return shipping label was created and bought, they have the ease of creating and buying a shipping label online from anywhere in the world and they are the only shipping carrier that requires their delivery drivers to take a picture of where they placed and delivered your documents/packages to which you can view online with your tracking number.

In comparison UPS Stores are mostly franchise-owned, they do not require their drivers to take photos of delivered packages, and they will NOT give us (anyone) a drop-off receipt when we (anyone) physically drop off documents or packages in their stores if the person that created and bought the prepaid shipping label did it at another UPS Store or they used a UPS corporate or shipping account number to create and purchase the shipping label.

It goes without saying but please never use the United States Postal Service (USPS) especially post-COVID to mail your documents to us or for the prepaid return shipping label that you provide us. USPS loses documents and misdelivers documents ALL THE TIME that aren't received for weeks or even months later from the day they were shipped.

Remember these are your original, private, and time-sensitive legal documents so please don't be cheap and spend a few extra bucks for FedEx or worst case use UPS shipping.

Also, you don't need to have a FedEx Office near you nor do you need to have an existing FedEx account set up with FedEx to purchase and create shipping labels with them online.

You can do everything online at www.FedEx.com.

First, you click on the Shipping tab ==>

Then click on the Create a Shipment tab ==>

Then click on the Create a one-time credit card shipment link ==>

Then, just like ordering on Amazon/eBay, you put your to/from mailing and payment information in the required fields ==>

Then you download the PDF shipping label that is created, and you can either email the PDF to us or you can print it out and mail it to us along with your documents.
