

How do I get an apostille in El Paso?

The short and truthful answer is you can't.

The only place in the State of Texas (or the country and world for that matter) where you or your company can be issued a Texas apostille certificate on any type of personal, business, or corporation document that was either notarized by a Texas notary public or was issued from a Texas governmental agency is at the Texas Secretary of State office located in downtown Austin, TX.

When you see companies and random side hustling notaries advertising online for El Paso apostille services please understand you can't travel anywhere in El Paso or mail documents anywhere in El Paso, TX, and be legally issued a Texas apostille certificate.

All you are doing is mailing, dropping off, or having someone come to your home or office to pick up your documents which is a third-party middle-man that will either outsource the filings of your documents to a person or a company like ours that is physically located in Austin, TX who will then same day rush file your documents at the Secretary of State Texas office.

Or worse, these shady middleman places only mail your documents off to the Texas Secretary of State office and then tell you it will take several weeks or a few months to procure your certifications as they absurdly overcharge you for so-called "expedited apostille services."

Please mail your documents to:
